Navy historian's grandson nabbed in sale of secret Soviet ship photos

Washington (News Bureau)—The grandson of famed naval historian Samuel Eliot Morison has been arrested by FBI agents for allegedly selling secret U.S. satellite photographs of the Soviet Navy's first nuclear-powered aircraft carrier to the highly respected British defense publication Jane's Defense Weekly, the bureau announced yesterday.

In a complaint filed in federal court in Baltimore,

Samuel Loring Morison, 40, of Crofton, Md., an analyst with the Naval Intelligence Support Center and a part-time editor employed by Jane's Fighting Ships, parent firm of the weekly publication, was charged with "transmitting and disclosing" three classified satellite photographs of a Soviet aircraft carrier under construction in a Black Sea naval shipyard to Jane's Defense Weekly.

Morison was arrested

Monday night at Washington's Dulles International Airport.

Scion of a distinguished Boston family, Morison's grandfather was commissioned by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to write the U.S. naval history of World War II and his 15-volume history generally is regarded as a classic. He also won Pulitzer prizes for his biographies of Christopher Columbus and John Paul Jones.
